Re: Project Indigenous Restoration 1992

29 October 1991

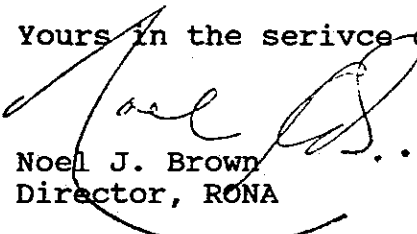

Dear Mr. Beaton:

Thank you very much for the information about Project Indigenous Restoration 1992. The United Nations Environment Programme is pleased to lend its support to such a worthy project. The events you have planned to bring together indigenous peoples from as far away as the Amazon and the Arctic in support of the environment are indeed commendable.

We at the United Nations Environment Programme are very impressed with the success you have had in bringing traditional chiefs and elders into the schools to teach environmental protection. We also are concerned about the exploitation of the Earth and its effect on indigenous peoples.

We encourage you to continue your approach of education through indigenous peoples as instructors. What better way to learn about the environment than from those whose lives are so closely allied with planet Earth! Best of luck for success with Project Indigenous Restoration 1992.

Yours in the service of the Earth,

Noel J. Brown
